Historic, archived document

Do not assume content reflects current scientific knowledge, policies, or practices.

U.S.D.A. P. COS SERVICE, OFFICE OF INFORMATION, AND TATENSION SERVICE

(Digest of Market Basket for March 3, 1943)

RURAL WOMEN FIND MAYS TO BE MORE SELF-SUTFICIENT

and to do it with resourcefulness. The roll call of March 1 to 20, in which the U.S. Depart ent of Agriculture is asking rural women to pledge their best efforts to produce and conserve home food supplies, is a call to be self-sufficient.

					and the second second
			tells	tha	following
/ 3-	The state of the s		The same of the sa	0.10
(Earle)	(Tit	le)	(Place)

warth e stances, which home economists of the Department of Agriculture say are good expands of how farm women are being self-reliant and resourceful about the home food sungly.

For the sing that you have do, this the Webraska farm weman who turned a jalopy into a hetbed for her Victory Garden. Generous-sized windows of the old-model car made it a bed greenhouse. A trap door in the roof provided ventilation. As its first jet on the food front, the ex-car was used in starting 400 tomato plants, rich in vitamin C. Another jalopy, on a South Carolina farm, is now a brooder for chicks. The car has been jacked up, tires removed. The frame is lined with pieces of advertising tim, and a track burner stands in an oil drum in one corner to the the chicks.

A least we an doubled her home-carmed goods and found she lacked shelves-jude consider of Old Nother Mubbard's plight. Nothing daunted, she turned carpe and make shelves. In this connection, the home economists say that providing right storigs is an important part of conserving. Finned foods need a dry was present rist and spoilage. For glass, see that storage is dry, cool, and

In an Itya county, honemakers organized groups with a telephone chair each group. Any woman who had garden fruits or vegetables to spare, telemews. And any women whose garden failed on some crop phoned that news, * Through the season, those who "had" shared with those who lacked.

Many such atories have come to the Department of Agriculture, fro country. Unloubtedly there will be more this year from women who fir wars to be self-sufficient in a critical time.

